

Overview

This Internationally recognised 5-day training course has been specially designed for those directly involved with the maintenance, monitoring and improvement of a Safety and/or Quality Management System.

This includes management at all levels. A vital feature of this aviation quality and lead auditor training course is the application of the ISO 9001:2015 Quality Management System requirements as they are the foundation for management systems, worldwide. The interpersonal skills and qualities required to lead an effective audit team are instilled throughout and applied through various workshops and practical audits.

This course is certified and internationally recognised. Upon successful completion of the course and all required assessments participants will receive an Exemplar Global certificate and four core units required to achieve the Diploma of Quality Auditing.
See the Southpac course program for further details.
